➤ Which of the following instruments aboard Chandrayaan-2 collected radar data used by ISRO to study the Moon's polar regions?

- A) MIP
- B) DFSAR
- C) LEND
- D) LRO
- E) SPDC

Answer
B) DFSAR

Event and Location:

- Event: ISRO develops advanced lunar data products from Chandrayaan-2 radar observations
- Location: Space Applications Centre (SAC), Ahmedabad & ISRO HQ, Bengaluru
- Date: November 8, 2025

Mandates and Objectives:

- Mandates:
 - ISRO scientists have processed and released 1400+ radar datasets captured by DFSAR (Dual Frequency Synthetic Aperture Radar) aboard Chandrayaan-2's orbiter.
 - These datasets provide critical information on water-ice presence, surface roughness, density, and porosity of the Moon's south polar region.

Mandates and Objectives:

- Objectives:
 - To create ready-to-use data products for studying the Moon's polar regions,
 - To aid in understanding mineral distribution,
 - To explore early chemical conditions of the solar system, and
 - To support future planetary exploration missions with scientific insight into lunar terrain.

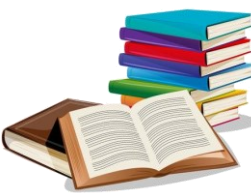

Important Terms Explained:

- DFSAR (Dual Frequency Synthetic Aperture Radar):
 - An advanced radar system onboard Chandrayaan-2's orbiter, designed to map lunar surface features in both L- and S-bands, especially useful for polar region exploration and detecting water-ice.
- Chandrayaan-2 Mission (2019):
 - India's second lunar mission launched by ISRO with an orbiter, lander (Vikram), and rover (Pragyan). While the lander failed during descent, the orbiter continues to function and transmit valuable scientific data.

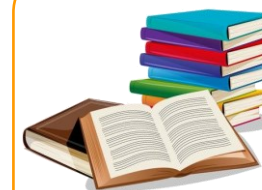

Important Terms Explained:

- Space Applications Centre (SAC):
 - An ISRO research institution located in Ahmedabad, responsible for developing satellite-based applications and data processing algorithms, including the one used for Chandrayaan-2 radar data.
